All three casinos are subject to a wagering tax of 19%, with 10.9% of this levy to go to the City of Detroit and 8.1% to be paid to the State of Michigan.

MICHIGAN GAMING CONTROL BOARD RENEWS DETROIT CASINO LICENSES, REVISES MEETING SCHEDULE

In consecutive unanimous votes, the casino licenses for all three of the Detroit Casinos (Greektown, MGM Grand Detroit and MotorCity Casinos) were renewed by the Michigan Gaming Control Board (“MGCB”) during its September 9, 2014 regular public meeting. Under Section 6 of the Michigan Gaming Control and Revenue Act, MCL 432.206, a casino license is issued for a one-year period. All casino licenses are renewable annually upon the payment of the license fee and the filing of an annual report that includes all information required under the MGCB’s Administrative Rules.

At its September 9th meeting, the MGCB also adopted a new regular public meeting schedule that it will use moving forward. Instead of meeting on or about the second Tuesday of every month (except for the months of January and July), as has been the traditional meeting schedule, the MGCB will now change to holding its regular public meetings on or about the second Tuesday of every other month. During the discussion on this topic at the September 9th meeting, MGCB Board members agreed that they may still need to be available for special meetings as circumstances warrant.

Accordingly, the next meeting of the MGCB will be held at 9:30 am on Wednesday, November 12, 2014 at its Detroit office located in the Cadillac Place at 3062 West Grand Boulevard, Suite L-700, Detroit, MI 48202. A schedule of the MGCB regular public meetings can be found on the Board's website at: http://www.michigan.gov/mgcb/0,4620,7-120-57615_57616---,00.html

DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR NEARS END OF FEDERAL RECOGNITION COMMENT PERIOD

On Wednesday, September 3 and Friday, September 5, 2014, the Bureau of Indian Affairs ("BIA") held conference calls to receive and address comments related to its current proposed rulemaking for 205 CFR 83, the federal regulation governing the federal recognition process for Native American tribes. Under the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act ("IGRA"), federal recognition is a key component for Native American tribes seeking to develop tribal gaming properties.

On July 25, 2014, the US Department of the Interior ("DOI"), the parent agency of the BIA, issued a press release noting that it had extended the comment period for proposed changes to 205 CFR 83 due to its receipt of numerous comments and public interest in the proposed changes. Written comments will now be accepted until September 30, 2014.

The proposed changes would reduce and/or streamline many of the requirements for tribes seeking federal recognition. For example, under prior practice, documentation was required to be provided proving that a tribe showing "community and political authority...[from the] time of first sustained contact with non-Indians or 1789." The proposed changes would amend this look back period to 1934, the year that the Indian Regulatory Act was passed into law that establishes the recognition process, a change which the BIA states "will reduce the documentary burden on the Department, and will avoid potential problems with locating historical records while maintaining the integrity of the process." Other changes include the removal of certain documentary evidence requirements, bring the regulations into line with current BIA policies and procedures, and establish more objective or transparent review policies.

Last week's calls were made to further clarify portions of the rules and to respond to public questions. During Friday's call, Mr. Larry Roberts, Principal Deputy Assistant Secretary of the BIA, noted that "over the years, many have criticized the process as broken and some of the criticisms that the department has heard is that it takes too long, that its burdensome and its expensive, that its unpredictable and that it's not transparent." The regulatory changes seek to address these concerns, as well as to make the process more modern and efficient.
